7. REPRESENTATIVE METHODS OF INSTRUCTION:

Typical methods of instruction may include:

- A. Other (Specify): 1. Using lectures along with demonstrations of grammatical structures (grammar should be contextualized); 2. Using inductive methods to elicit students' prior knowledge of the target grammar structure (asking questions to help students generate grammar rules rather than telling them the rules); 3. Using reading articles to demonstrate the target grammar in context; 4. Scaffolding the grammar in writing assignments (hold students accountable to the cumulative grammar taught in each writing assignment); 5. Giving grammar quizzes to assess students' knowledge and skills; 6. Using student-centered activities that will help students focus on grammatical structures as well as rhetorical modes; 7. Teaching writing as a process (prewriting, drafting, revising, and editing); 8. Using reading materials and/or a short novel to build schema for writing assignments and using student model paragraphs to teach rhetorical modes and/or grammatical structures; 9. Using Peer Feedback sheets to encourage collaboration in writing assignments;

10. Incorporating reading, writing, grammar, and critical thinking skills in a variety of activities; 11. Connecting students' knowledge and experience with the writing assignments; 12. Using the ESL department's approved editing/proofreading symbols in writing assignments; 13. Introducing basic summarizing skills (restating the main ideas or salient points of a reading selection and/or a chapter from a short novel).

8. REPRESENTATIVE ASSIGNMENTS

Representative assignments in this course may include, but are not limited to the following:
